Diab Al-Badayneh

Professor of Applied Sociology

Department of Sociology, MU, Jordan

+962-79-555-2202

dbadayneh@gmail.com

President, IKCRS, Jordan

Dr. Diab Al-Badayneh is a professor of Sociology at Mutah University, Jordan, and a president of Ibn Khaldun Center for Research and Studies (IKCRS). His degrees include a PhD in Applied Sociology, Complex organizations, Social Psychology, Social Statistics and Criminology from Western Michigan University (1990), an MA in Psychology from Jordan University (1985), and a BA in Psychology/Sociology (1979) from Jordan University (1979). He participated in a summer Institute in Governance, Public policy and civil society, summer 2002, University of Castilla -LaMancha, Toledo, Spain (UME).

Dr. Al-badayneh's areas of interest and expertise include violence against women, applied criminology, social movements, terrorism, evaluation, attitudes, corruption, criminological theory, and organizational culture. He approaches his research through quantitative and qualitative methods which lend itself to in-depth interviewing, survey, participant observation, focus groups, and field research. His current lines of research center on: Jordan Youth Social movements (Herak), general strains, radicalization, corruption, security threats, women coping strategies and stigma.

He has taught a variety of classes for the Department of Sociology, MU; Royal Academy, Jordan; NAUSS, KSA at graduate and undergraduate level, including Statistical Techniques, Computer application in Research, Advances computer applications, Advanced statistics methods, Advanced Applied Social Research, Research methodology; Comparative criminology, Criminological Theory, Criminal Psychology, Corrections, Crime typology, Information Warfare and Victimology

He has carried out many of the courses in the area of e-learning and training for faculty members to use the computer, where he was the first Dean to be licensed the International Computer Driving License (ICDL) at Mutah University, and he was the first PhD student owned a computer in the Department of Sociology at the University (WMU) in 1989. He was the founder of Computer Social Research laboratory for social education and students training in the Department of Sociology at Mutah University. He has introduced computer applications and usages in Social Sciences courses and research methods and English languages as a compulsory requirement in the College of Social Sciences. He chaired the committee that established a PhD program in Security at Naif Arab University for Security Sciences (NAUSS), Mutah University (MU), Royal Academy and College of National Defense.

He is the founder of IKCRS. Among his more than one hundred fifty publications are more than fifty referred articles in a international and national journals, including two articles won a national and international awards: Research Award for the Best Research in Psychological Sciences (Ministry of Higher Education and Scientific Research), and the Award of Association of Islamic Universities on the research entitled: Values of Tolerance in the Curricula of University Education. And more than seventy scientific papers presented at scientific conferences and specialized seminars, in addition to sixteen scientific papers presented in the foreign language of international conferences. He has published more than ten books; some of them were re-published, including a book (edit) in English (Understanding Terrorism) with a funded by the scientific program of the NATO in peace and security. Another book was a translating from English into Arabic (APA Publication Manual) and won the award for the best translated book. He chaired and organized more than fifteen international conferences and dozens of seminars and workshops. He supervised more than fifty theses. He holds memberships in several professional organizations such as WSV, and ISS.

He has a rich and varied experience in the area of university administration, at both the local and regional levels. His experience is continuous and accumulated for more than fifteen years. He has occupied a number of managerial position including: Assistant Dean of the Faculty of Arts, the Director of Information and Planning Department, Head of Social Studies (Saudi Arabia), and the Dean of Studies and Research Center (Saudi Arabia), Dean of the Faculty of Graduate Studies, and Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences (founder), and Dean of Scientific Research (Mutah University and the University of Tafila), and Dean of the College of Administrative Sciences, Dean of the College of Arts (University of Hussein), and Vice-President, Technical University (administrative and academic), and Vice-President Hussein Bin Talal University for Administrative Affairs 2007 – 2010

Dr. Al-Badayneh has developed the Strategic Plan to Combat Violence Against Women sponsored by the National Committee for Women Affairs, and conducted the first national survey on violence against women in Jordan, and also developed the National Framework for the Protection of the Family Against Violence, he is a team leader in Developing Standards for MoSD Social Services (world Bank and MoSD).

Al-Badayneh has conducted an evaluation of the performance of the Poor Aid funds a study funded by the Coordination Commission for social solidarity, and with the support of the Schuman Foundation he conducted a study on poverty in the province of Tafila (in press) was conducted. Currently he is a team leader conducting a riders satisfaction with the public transports. He recent publications included the relation Development of an Arabian AIDS Stigma Scale; The relationship between Level of Self Control and Impudent Behavior among High School Students in Jordan; Transports Drivers' Violence on Jordanian Roadways and The effect of low self-control on Jordanian drivers' road violations.